"Hi Coaches!

Im writing a book about chess for beginners and had a question about creating images with AI. For those chapters where illustrations are required, for example, showing an opening move, how can I get an accurate prompt that would specifically demonstrate how these pieces make this move or complete it? Or is that too much? lol Do you have any recommendations?

I want to make sure I am being authentic to the game. How do I show accurate images using Dall-e or Midjourney? What the best minimal number of illustrations to provide for my book?

thanks so much"

"Can you look at my book cover and give me an opinion, or OK, so I can go forward and start getting the four versions of it through Fiverr? See the following link:

Hello coaches! I submitted book covers yesterday but forgot about proper access. They didn't get to review them but the old link is probably still in the cue. Here's the correct link: https://docs.google.com/document/d/1FA9EqYwKGs2Vu9slIYnt3TYYhP0h0LAadAE8B6drMeI/edit?usp=sharing

"Please critique my book title possibilities

1. Title: Discovering Your Roots

   Subtitle: Guide for teens and adults to research and preserve ancestorial lines, family lore, history, struggles, and triumphs to share with descendants and family using DNA and AI technology.

 2. Title: Exploring Family Roots for Teens and Adults

    Subtitle: Research, Organization, Documentation, and Preservation of Ancestorial information to share with descendants and family members using DNA and AI technology.

None of the books I used for POC had the new technologies included. I think this will be a selling point.

"My manuscript is asking for a conclusion.   Other than a thank you and a request for a review, what should be included?   I feel my last chapter summarized the book.

Grammarly shows no errors or plagiarism.   I don't think I need a source list, but do I need a statement that it was AI-generated and humanized by me (and Grammarly)? I also asked Grammarly to shorten by chapter to bring it from over 40K to a little less than 30K. I think they did well.   "

Lorraine

My manuscript is showing for example: Chapter 1: Getting Started with Genealogy Do I leave the Chapter Numbers as shown, display them on a line above the actual title of the chapter, or eliminate the chapter numbers?   Can the chapter name exceed one line?

"Hello! I am uploading my manuscripts and covers to KDP to make sure they look good before publishing. My trim size is 8.5 by 11, but I just noticed that when I try to upload my hardcover to KDP, it doesn't have an option for 8.5 by 11. It says 8.25 by 11.

 Is this okay? Do I need my formatter to do another size? "

"Hello! Do I need separate ISBNs for paperback and hardcover?

Also, now that I have the information about ISBNs, I want to go back to my 7DC book and create my own ISBN so I can put it on Ingrahm Spark. I'm assuming it's too late since it's already published on Amazon? " LOL!

PS- I watched the Modules, but still have the question...sorry. But I am on the call today so if you don't understand the confusing question, let me know!

Hi Coaches, regarding FB Review method. Once you have the reader group, how do you quickly let 100+ people know about the time when they can purchase for $0? They have to post in the 1-2 days the promo is active. Seems it has to be by email blast, yes? So I need to be asking for email, correct? Or how else do we do this? Right now I'm going thru my phonebook, and sending messages. To send individual messages or DMs to that many people is terribly labor intensive. Need practical advice please. Thanks! 25 people currently reading the ARC of Stoicism for Modern Life, pending response from QSA. Getting close!

"My target audience likes case studies and real-world examples. When publishing.ai wrote my manuscript, it was really great, but all the case studies and real-world examples are made up. I researched a few of the names and scenarios, and even chatgpt couldn't find the actual cases that were referenced. I checked the references links that publishing.ai put in my outline, but none of the case studies were mentioned.

Should I take all the case studies out of my manuscript? Will it be bad to have fictitious ""real-world"" examples in my book? It's a little obvious with the names of the programs mentioned that they are not real. What would you do?"

Thank you very much in advance!
