There are many students on this call, all at different points in their publishing journey. We receive many questions and do our best to choose the ones that are applicable and helpful to the majority of attendees on this call.

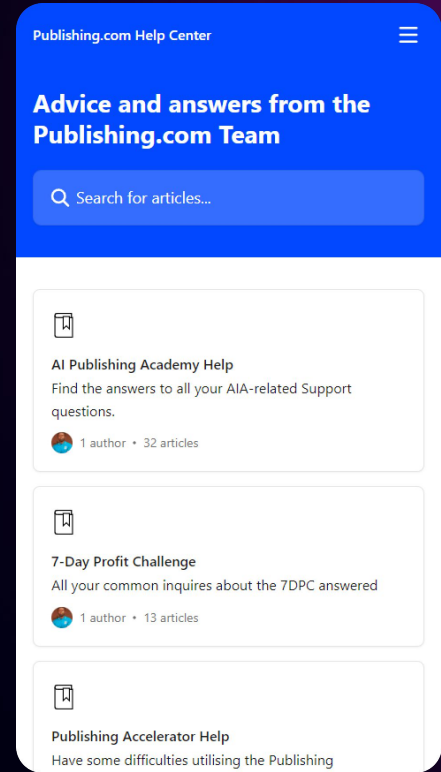

We would rather spend more time going deep into a good question rather than rushing from one question to the next. Therefore, we will pick and choose the best questions.

TOPIC RULES :)

- Each student is allowed to submit two topics for proof of concept (POC) testing by coaches.
- If a student submits more than two topics, the two most “specific” topics submitted will be considered for POC testing.
- This approach ensures that more students have the opportunity to receive feedback on their topics
- As coaches, our goal is to develop your skills, enhancing your comfort and confidence in navigating the proof of concept process.

Ayesha Ikram

Hi Coaches,

Can you please help me double check POC for these two title? It is my first 30k book and I would like to be absolutely sure before investing time and resources. Thank you.

- 1- Container Gardening for Beginners
- 2- Container and Raised Bed Gardening

1. Many of the topics in the list of 100 (300) profitable topics are journals, workbooks, or would very much require imagery to be successful. Would these formats pass proof of concept?
2. What is a good barometer for disqualifying a topic for too much competition? For example, I identified a topic that passes proof of concept, however there are four other books published within the past year in addition to the three that serve as proof. Would you consider that too much competition to be successful?

Rachele Phommacharinh

Hi there, Manya and Dani

Since we only have one shot at writing our book, I want to make sure I pick the right topic. I'm not sure if this topic will make a good audio book, but I have more experience and interest in this field vs. doing a book on Macrame. (my friend's hobby was doing Macrame).Setting Boundaries

- 1) Setting Boundaries That Stick: How Neurobiology Can Help You Rewire Your Brain to Feel Safe, Connected, and Empowered
- 2) Setting Boundaries with Difficult People: Six Steps to SANITY for Challenging Relationships
- 3) Setting Boundaries to Find Peace with Narcissists & Codependents: How to Communicate with Toxic People to Free Yourself From Manipulation and Gaslighting Without Feeling Guilty (Growth)

Topic: Teen School Confidence:

#of books with more than $500 and less than 150 reviews: 7

Of these books, how many are actually about the topic you are researching: 4

Book Concept: I have two degrees (B.A. English, B.Ed) and am considering publishing under my own name. The book will be about Study Habits and Test Preparation to take teen students from overwhelmed with school to being confident when following the processes (steps) in the book. The initial focus will be on High School Students. There could be a second book in this topic for a Bundle.

Mary Maas

A topic research question: I achieved POC on several topics but they require photos and diagrams. I understand that adds difficulty and cost to print. Should I look for a topic that doesn't ? If I don't include them it could affect the success of my book compared to others out there.

Tuan Do

When I check POC for topic "atomic habits", it is clear the concept but it has high competition.
May I have your thought about this topic for new starter?

Hamed Bank

Hi, Lovely coaches. I have two topics that I need your help to decide which to pick.

1- Yoga and Meditation. I am personally, passionate about this topic.

2- Iceland travel guide: I have never been to Iceland but I would love to go there as a photographer it is on top of my list. So yes also passionate about that too.
